

October 22 – International punk band Gogol Bordello just announced the group’s infamous annual holiday shows, taking New York City on the road this time to the legendary Capitol Theatre in Port Chester, NY, Philadelphia, Baltimore & beyond – tour dates below + here. Inciting sonic forces Puzzled Panther and Grace Bergere from the band’s label Casa Gogol Records will join as support.

Gogol Bordello’s Eugene Hütz launched Casa Gogol Records last year with the release of collaborative song “Solidarity” by Gogol Bordello feat. Bernard Sumner (New Order):

Bernard Sumner (New Order) – “Right To Freedom” Mix

Gogol Bordello’s “Unity” Mix

The label has since amplified a “New New York” sound with releases by:

Grace Bergere’s debut album A Little Blood featuring “La Strada” video.

“Grace Bergere is real rock n’ roll. Songwriter par excellence, guitar slinger extraordinaire, a badass, a sweetheart – What more can you ask for? Yeah, I’m a fan.”

– Jim Jarmusch

Puzzled Panther’s (Victoria Espinoza, Kay Bontempo, Yeah Yeah Yeahs’ Brian Chase, Eugene Hütz) self-titled Puzzled Panther + “Dirty Boots” Sonic Youth cover (produced by Steve Shelley & Eugene Hütz)

Along with Gogol Bordello and Dresden Doll shows at Boston’s Roadrunner on November 1 & 2, Eugene Hütz and Sergey Ryabtsev from the band are also kicking off the Scream of My Blood film tour on October 27, engaging in Q&A sessions and spirited live performances following the film screenings. Scream of My Blood is an intimate portrait of Hütz as an Ukrainian immigrant, chronicling the rise of his NYC punk band Gogol Bordello and his defiant return to Ukraine. The Vice doc premiered at Tribeca Film Festival last June, earning a Special Jury Mention for Best New Documentary Director Award for Nate Pommer and Eric Weinrib. The film is produced by Nate Pommer and Beverly Chase.

“Hütz’s story is fascinating and triumphant. Scream of My Blood’ remains essential.” -Variety

“The gypsy punk band brings their high-energy live show to a new level...

will have you dancing and singing along.” – Rolling Stone

ABOUT GOGOL BORDELLO

Since 1999, International punk band Gogol Bordello, led by Ukrainian frontman Eugene Hütz, has been filling up rooms with an energy that could run a whole city. Their latest album Solidaritime is no exception, going back to their hardcore roots. A lifelong lover of the punk scene growing up in Ukraine, Hütz finally found himself where he felt he belonged, in New York's Lower East Side in the late 90s, where he went to shows and later performed at the legendary CBGB. Crashing at friends' apartments and playing acoustic sets in NYC Ukrainian bars, his group steadily grew to an 8 piece multicultural band, combining Eastern, Western and Latin traditions. Since then the band has lit up stages around the world alongside System of a Down, Primus, Rancid, Dropkick Murphys, dueted with Regina Spektor, and cut albums with legends Rick Rubin and Steve Albini.

Russia's war in Ukraine is personal for Eugene & the band, who have been tirelessly advocating for Ukrainian solidarity, partnering with Nova Ukraine, ArtDopomoga, and putting together benefits with Patti Smith, The Hold Steady, Suzanne Vega, Magnetic Fields, Matisyahu and more. Hütz has also appeared in arthouse films such as Liev Schreiber's Everything Is Illuminated with Elijah Wood, Filth and Wisdom helmed by Madonna and Vice documentary Scream of My Blood: A Gogol Bordello Story (Executive Producer Liev Schreiber).
