Fast-rising alternative rock outfit unpeople have released the brand new single titled "the garden."

The new song arrives alongside a stellar music video ahead of the band's first-ever headline show in London tonight.

"'the garden' started off as a joke," the band comments. "An actual musical joke. A musical joke that we couldn't stop singing for weeks on end. Lyrically, we wanted to keep it very simple and borderline surface level nonsensical. There is meaning but we'd rather leave that up to the listener to discern and interpret for themselves. Sometimes, you want to get away from it all, but simultaneously have a feeling of familiarity and a sense of security."
