"This song is a love letter to your ride or die — the person you would give it all for," the band states. "The person who makes everyday you get to spend with them a blessing. Because your life was good, but they made it infinitely better. The video expresses the true intimacy of the song and the unique versatility of Pistols at Dawn."

It follows the band's hit track "Not Sorry," which worked its way up the Active Rock radio airplay charts to No. 25. ICYMI, you can also check out the band's single "Obsession" and watch the lyric video here.

Pistols At Dawn craft the kind of rock music that doesn't just reach the rafters; it breaks through the ceiling. Sky-high hooks stretch into the heavens, a powerful low-end rumbles without apology, and riffs roar at all the right moments. Thus far, the Atlanta band have emerged as a phenomenon. They've amassed nearly 10 million global streams and views, infiltrated the Billboard and Mediabase Top 40 Active Rock charts, earned acclaim from American Songwriter, Brave Words, and the Atlanta Journal Constitution, and embarked upon global tours alongside heavy-hitters such as Alter Bridge, Mammoth WVH, Fozzy, Des Rocks, and more. The quartet has canvased the world the past few years and shows no signs of slowing down.

Stayed tuned for more, because Pistols at Dawn are leveling up.
