

The Velveteers are celebrating rock n roll's queer, non-binary, female-fronted future with their new album A Million Knives, out February 14 on Easy Eye Sound. The Colorado trio features two drummers playing on a conjoined kit, behind tour-de-force frontwoman Demi Demitro – and they recently described the 13-song collection to Billboard as “exploring the different forms of heartbreak”...quite naturally for its Valentine's Day release.

You can preview A Million Knives with “On and On” – a rallying cry against rampant misogyny in the music industry – which was named a Song You Need To Know by Rolling Stone among “best of” selections from Guitar World to GLAAD. Paste said “Demitro is one of the most exciting frontpeople in rock n' roll.”

 Listen to “On and On” here: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Sp_XGYCdm5A

The Velveteers have previously played high profile dates with Guns N' Roses and Smashing Pumpkins (penetrating rock n roll's old guard with their fresh perspectives in the process) and this spring will play headline shows across the Western U.S. for the first time ever – beginning with a sold-out hometown Denver release show (Feb 14) and continuing onto Los Angeles (March 13), Austin (March 22) and many more.