NEW ALBUM, HIC SVNT DRACONES, AVAILABLE NOW

Today, Austrian power metallers DRAGONY have shared a brand new official music video for "The Einherjar (What Dreams May Come)," cut from their recently released studio album Hic Svnt Dracones available now on Steamhammer/SPV.

Singer Siegfried Samer on the track: "We picked 'The Einherjar' for the final video single from our album Hic Svnt Dracones, as its folk elements add a new dimension to the DragonY sound, and the epic chorus and middle part make a bold atmospheric statement. As a special highlight, Björn Malmros from Ye Banished Privateers added some accordion parts to the song."

The first tour dates for early 2025 are already under way for DragonY, recently gracing the "Ghostlands & Ravenlands" festival stage in Athens, Greece. and soon to embark on a European tour as special guests for Serious Black, kicking off March 18.

What started in the summer of 2007 as a studio project conceived by a handful of enthusiastic power metal fans from Vienna, Austria known as The Dragonslayer Project, Dragonfly has long since become an established name in the international metal world.

After completing their first headlining tour across Mexico in October 2023 and later touring as a support act for Warkings, the group has now begun a new chapter. For 2024, Dragonfly refreshed their lineup, welcoming Matt on guitars and Chris on drums. Having signed with the renowned metal label Steamhammer/SPV, this rejuvenated ensemble is ready to write the next part of its story, combining new members' talents with the support of its esteemed new label.
