

Rising avant-pop force Sophie Powers is back and bolder than ever with her latest single, "move with me"

." Marking the dawn of a new era, the 20-year-old artist sheds the bubblegum neon aesthetic that defined her earlier work, stepping into a darker, rawer, and more nihilistic vision—one that embraces chaos rather than sugarcoating it.

A sonic adrenaline rush, "move with me" surges with pulsating synths, futuristic pop melodies, and Sophie's signature rebellious spirit. The track captures the struggle of balancing ambition with intimacy in a world that never slows down. It's about finding someone who doesn't hold you back but matches your momentum. The accompanying music video for "move with me" will be out today at 9 AM PT / 12 PM ET.

"It's becoming harder and harder to find someone who seamlessly fits into our busy lives," Sophie explains. "As a music artist, fashion designer, and 20-year-old bisexual 'girlboss,' my hectic schedule has made dating feel impossible—but it's not just me. My generation values independence over tradition. Finding a partner isn't a necessity, but it's still nice to meet someone who just gets you—who can keep up and move with you."

Sophie Powers is leading the charge of a new generation of sharp-minded, creative outcasts. Call her sound whatever you want, but one thing is certain: she is on a mission to bring raw, unfiltered emotion back to a pop landscape that often feels detached.

That subversive attitude towards genre is also expressed in Sophie's visual aesthetic. She designs all of her own outfits, collaborating with a seamstress to create looks as bold and unconventional as her sound. She recently partnered with Harajuku streetwear brand ACDC RAG and Gloomy Bear to design a collection that celebrates individuality, bold expression, and counterculture.

Since making her debut in 2022, the Toronto-born, LA-based artist has caught the attention of tastemakers like PAPER, The FADER, and Alternative Press. Following the release of her debut EP, Kerrang! crowned her "the next poster girl for femme attitude"—a title she continues to embody. That same bold energy translates to her magnetic live performances, where she commands the stage with an electrifying presence. This summer, fans can experience it firsthand as she takes over all three dates of Warped Tour and brings her high-octane show to the UK's Slam Dunk Festival.

Through her music, visuals, and unapologetic attitude, Sophie Powers isn't just redefining what it means to be an artist—she's creating an entirely new blueprint.

Listen to "move with me" on all streaming platforms:

<https://stem.ffm.to/movewithme>

Watch the music video for "move with me" (premiering at 9 AM PT / 12 PM ET):

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=es9-YEgzcVI>

